

the sole authority of making war and peace, are the true marks of sovereignty.

A mighty hunter thence he shall be fill'd
Before the Lord; as in despite of heav'n,
Or from heav'n, claiming second sovereignty.
Nothing does to gratify a haughty humour, as this piece of usurped sovereignty over our brethren. Govern. of the Tongue.
Jove's own tree,

That holds the woods in awful sovereignty,
Requires a depth of lodging in the ground;
High as his t' most boughs to heav'n ascend,
So low his roots to hell's dominion tend.

I well foresee, when'er thy suit I grant,
That I my much lov'd sovereignty shall want,
And her new beauty may thy heart invade.
Let us above all things possess our souls with awful apprehensions of the majesty and sovereignty of God.

Alexander's Grecian colonies in the Indies were almost exterminated by Sandrocottus; Seleucus recovered the sovereignty in some degree, but was forced to abandon to him the country along the Indus.

Sou'gh. n. f. [from sou, French.] A subterraneous drain.

Yet could not such mines, without great pains, and charges, if at all, be wrought; the delv's would be so flown with waters, it being impossible to make any adds or foughs to drain them, that no gins or machines could suffice to lay and keep them dry.

Another of like sort, was found in sinking a fough-pit at Haugh in Lancashire.

Sou'gh. n. f. The preterite and participle pass. of seek.

I am sought of them that asked not for me: I am found of them that sought me not.

The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.

Soul. n. f. [Heb. nephesh, Dan. nefesh, Islandic nef, Dutch ziel.]

1. The immaterial and immortal spirit of man.
When death was overcome, he opened heaven as well to the believing Gentiles as Jews: heaven till then was no receptacle to the souls of either.

2. The soul, or unreviv'd tongue! to call her bad,
Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast prefer'd.

With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths,
Perhaps, for want of food, the soul may pine;
But that were strange, since all things bad and good;
Since all God's creatures, mortal and divine;
Since God himself is her eternal food.

He remembered them of the promises, seals and oaths, which by publick authority had pass'd for concluding this marriage, that these being religious bonds betwixt God and their souls, could not by any peltick act of state be dissolved.

Eloquence the soul, long charms the sense.

3. Vital principle.

They say this town is full of cozenage,
Drug-working forerers that change the mind;
Soul-killing witches that deform the body;
And many such like libertines of sin.

Thou almost mak'st me waver in my faith,
To hold opinion with Pythagoras,
That souls of animals infuse themselves
Into the trunks of men.

Thou fun, of this great world both eye and soul,
Join voices all ye living souls! ye birds,
That singing up to heav'n gate ascend,
Bear on your wings, and in your notes his praise.

In common discourse and writings, we leave out the words vegetative, sensitive, and rational; and make the word soul serve for all these principles.

4. Spirit; essence; quintessence; principal part.

He has the very soul of bounty,
Charity the soul of all the rest.

5. Interior power.

There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distil it out.

6. A familiar appellation expressing the qualities of the mind.

Three wenches where I stood, cry'd:
"Alas, good soul!"

This is a poor mad soul; and she says up and down the town, that her eldest son is like you.

The poor soul fat singing by a yscamore tree,
Sing all a green willow:

Her hand on her bosom, her head on her knee, Unentangled souls are disfigured with the wonders of the microscope, discovering animals which equal not a peppercorn.

7. Human being.

The moral is the case of every soul of us.

Keep the poor soul no longer in suspense,
Your change is such as does not need defence.

It is a republick; there are in it a hundred bourgeois, and about a thousand souls.

My state of health none care to learn;
My life is here no soul's concern.

7. Active power.

Earth, air and seas, through empty space would rowl,
And heav'n would fly before the driving soul.

8. Spirit; fire; grandeur of mind.

9. Intelligent being in general.

Every soul in heav'n shall bend the knee.

Sou'LED. adj. [from soul.] Furnished with mind.

Gripping, and still tenacious of thy hold,
Wou'd'st thou the Grecian chiefs, though largely sou'LED, Shou'd give the prizes they had gain'd before.

Sou'LESS. adj. [from soul.] Mean; low; spiritless.

Slave, sou'LESS villain, dog, O rarely baste!

Sou'LSHOT. n. f. [from soul and shot.] Something paid for a soul's requiem among the Romanists.

In the Saxon times there was a funeral duty to be paid, called pecunia sepulchralis & symbelum animae, and a Saxon soul-shot.

SOUND. adj. [rumb, Saxon.]

1. Healthy; hearty; not morbid; not diseased; not hurt.

I am fall'n out with my more headier will,
To take the indispo'd and sickly fit
For the sound man.

He hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper; for what his heart thinks, his tongue speaks.

He hath received him safe and sound.

We can preserve
Unhurt our minds, and understanding sound.

The king visits all around,
Comforts the sick, congratulates the sound;
Honours the princely chiefs.

But Capys, and the rest of sounder mind,
The fatal present to the flames design'd,
Or to the deep.

When a word, which originally signifies any particular object, is attributed to several other objects, on account of some evident reference or relation to the original idea, this is peculiarly called an analogical word; so a sound or healthy pulse, a sound digestion, sound sleep, are all so called, with reference to a sound and healthy constitution; but if you speak of sound doctrine, or sound speech, this is by way of resemblance to health, and the words are metaphorical.

2. Right; not erroneous.

Whom although to know he life, and joy to make mention of his name; yet our soudest knowledge is to know that we know him not as indeed he is, neither can know him; and our safest eloquence concerning him is silence.

Let my heart be sound in thy statutes, that I be not ashamed.

The rules are sound and useful, and may serve your devotion.

3. Stout; strong; lusty.

The men are very strong and able of body; and therefore either give sound strokes with their clubs, wherewith they fight, or else shoot strong shots with their bows.

4. Valid; not failing.

They reserved their titles, tenures, and dignities whole and sound to themselves.

5. Fast; hearty. It is applied to sleep.

New wak'd from soudest sleep,
Soft on the flow'ry herb I found me laid
In balmy sweat.

SOUND. adv. Soundly; heartily; completely fast.

The messenger approaching to him spake,
But his waste words return'd to him in vain;
So sound he slept that nought might him awake.

SOUND. n. f. [from soude, French.] A shallow sea, such as may be sounded.

The sound of Denmark, where ships pay toll.

Behold I come, sent from the Stygian sounds,
As a dire vapour that had cleft the ground,
T'ingender with the night, and blast the day.

Him young Thoosa bore, the bright increase
Of Phorcy's, dreaded in the sounds and seas.

SOUND. n. f. [from soude, Fr.] A probe, an instrument used by chi-rurgeons to feel what is out of reach of the fingers.

The patient being laid on a table, pass the sound till it meet with some resistance.

TO SOUND. v. a.

And find 'em ripe for a revolt.

To

TO SOUND. v. n. To try with the sounding line.

The shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country and sounded and found it near twenty fathoms.

Beyond this we have no more a positive distinct notion of, infinite space than a mariner has of the depth of the sea, where having let down a large portion of his sounding-line, he reaches no bottom.

SOUND. n. f. The cuttle-fish.

SOUND. n. f. [from son, French; sonus, Latin.]

1. Any thing audible; a noise; that which is perceived by the ear.

Heaps of huge words uphoarded hideously
With horrid sounds, though having little sense,
And thereby wanting due intelligence,
Have marred the face of goodly poetry,
And made a monster of their fantasy.

Come, sisters, cheer we up his frights,
And shew the best of our delights;
I'll charm the air to give a sound,
While you perform your antick round.

Dash a stone against a stone in the bottom of the water, and it maketh a sound: so a long pole struck upon gravel in the bottom of the water, maketh a sound.

The warlike sounds of trumpets loud.

When'er he spoke his voice was heard around,
Loud as a trumpet with a silver sound.

That which is conveyed into the brain by the ear is called sound; though, 'till it affect the perceptive part, it be nothing but motion.

2. Mere empty noise opposed to meaning.

He contented himself with doubtful and general terms, which might make no ill sound in mens ears.

Let us consider this proposition as to its meaning; for it is the sense and not sound that must be the principle.

TO SOUND. v. n.

1. To make a noise; to emit a noise.

From you sounded out the word of the Lord.

I rumpt once more to sound at general doom.

With other halfers made me soundly fast.

Who had so often in your aid
So many ways been soundly paid;
Came in at last for better ends.

Have no concern,
Provided Punch, for there's the jest,
Be soundly maul'd, and plague the rest.

Swift.

Their nobility and gentry are one half ruined, banished, of converted: they all soundly feel the smart of the last Irish war.

3. Truly; rightly.

The wisest are always the readiest to acknowledge, that soundly to judge of a law is the weightiest thing which any man can take upon him.

The doctrine of the church of England, expressed in the thirty-nine articles, is so soundly and orthodoxly settled, as cannot be questioned without extreme danger to our religion.

4. Fast; closely.

Now when that idle dream was to him brought,
Unto that elven knight he bad him fly,
Where he slept soundly, void of evil thought.

When the succession of ideas ceases, our perception of duration ceases with it, which every one experiments whilst he sleeps soundly.
